Explosion protection

Longer business interruptions can lead to customers looking for replacement suppliers. For many companies, an explosion could threaten their existence.

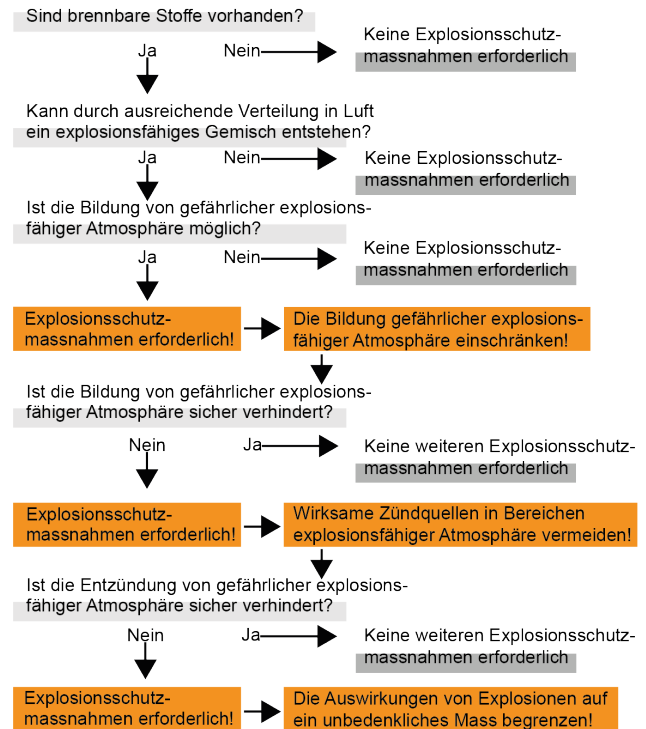

Do you store or use substances in your business that can form explosive atmospheres under certain conditions, such as flammable gases and liquids or combustible dusts?

Then you need to comply with the provisions of the ATEX directives (1999/92/EC and 2014/34/EU) and Suva concerning explosion protection and take effective protective measures to prevent explosions and fires.

We help you identify explosion risks and develop protective measures.

Our services:

- Analysis and evaluation of your explosion risks
- Development of explosion protection plans and classification of ATEX zones
- Support with drafting explosion protection documents
- Advice on the implementation of explosion protection measures
- Explosion protection audits
